Winemaker Notes:

While from a distance--and on paper--2015 and 2014 looked remarkably similar, they drink quite differently from one another. Three weeks of cooling separate the two vintages. In 2014 the warmth of the year kept on until harvest resulting in a race to bring in the fruit while it was within the sugar and acid ranges we prefer.

There is a density of fruit and tannin in our 2014 Cru wines. Plum, violet, forest floor and dried provencal herbs flows to more plum with raspberry coming in and finishing with a firm, but medium weight, potpourri, and a touch of dried leaves. While phylloxera slowly works its way through our estate vineyard we're quite happy to still not see any significant decrease in our estate pinot production.
